Investigation Shows Missionaries Did Not Bring On Fatal Outbreak at Lienchou.

Full details of the distressing instance of mob violence in Lienchou, south China, have now been received, says the Record of Christian Work. From these reports it is clear that the missionaries were in no way to blame for the attack made on them. Dr. Machle removed a toy cannon which was on the mission premises, but later returned it to the priests of the temple. They had built, for idolatrous purposes, a shed which encroached in the mission property, thus breaking a contract previously made. Some rufflana returned it to the priests of the temple. They had built, for idolatrous purposes, a shed which encroached in the mission property, thus breaking a con-tract previously made. Some ruffians excited the crowd with tales of sacrilege and further infuriated them by showing a skeleton as an indication of how the missionaries treat Chinese pa-tients. The mission property was destroyed and all but two of the missioncheerfully given. All work done by aries were murdered. An official in-experienced hands and fully guaran-vestigation is being made and already volunteers have come forward to take the place of those who have thus given their lives for China,

The Sabbath Question. The Sabbath made for man. When Christ said that, He did not abolish the Sabbath, but confirmed it. The Sabbath is God's gift to man.

But did He not abrogate the Satur-day Sabbath? To be sure, the apostles, after the resurrection, came to observe the anniversary of that great event rather than the day when Christ lay In the grave; but in so doing did no violence to the Fourth Commandment, which merely requires one to rest one day in seven. "The seventh is the Sabbath," and we are not told where mail you free, our daily quotation list, reaching you the count should begin.
